

Do you have ideas for better ways to do things, but aren't sure how to get your ideas heard or find the resources to implement them? The Staff Innovators Program was designed to help you advance your role as a local innovator.

The program offers an introduction to the concepts, techniques, and support needed to drive the next great breakthrough in your area or across the university. The program, which is open to all staff, covers the process of innovation, including learning to create, test, revise, and generate collaboration around different ways of meeting identified needs.

First Program Module Delivered on Sep 19
Next Program Module Delivered in mid-Oct
Final Program Module Delivered in mid-Nov

September through November

Creative Problem Solving

Elizabeth Strickler, Director, Media Entrepreneurship and Innovation, Creative Media Industries Institute

From Ideas to Innovation

Phil Ventimiglia, Chief Innovation Officer, Georgia State University

Leading the Change

Nate Bennett, Associate Dean, Robinson College of Business

Staff Innovators Workshop

February

Staff who complete all of the online mini-courses in the series will receive a "GSU Staff Innovator" certificate and will be eligible to attend an all-day Staff Innovators Workshop in February.

The Staff Innovators Program is a collaboration of the Center for Excellence in Teaching and Learning, the Creative Media Industries Institute, Human Resources, Instructional Innovation & Technology, and the Robinson College of Business.

Information online:

innovation.gsu.edu/sip